

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 15

---

Welcome and Beginnings, 5:00pm – 7:00pm (219 Aaron Burr Hall)

Setting an Agenda?

- Linda Colley (Princeton University)
- James Belich (Oxford University)

Preliminary questions

Reception

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 16

---

(All meetings in 219 Aaron Burr Hall, Princeton University)

A New Kind of Warfare? | Session One, 9:00am – 10.30am

Vitor Izecksohn (Universidade Federal do Rio de Janeiro): “The Labyrinths of Statehood: Military Recruitment during the War of the Triple Alliance in South America”

Matthew Karp (Princeton University): “Regions, Nations, Empires: The American Civil War in Global Perspective”

Stephen Platt (University of Massachusetts): “The Taiping Rebellion and the Wider World”

Chair: John Darwin (Oxford University)

Informal Networks | Session Two, 11:00am – 1:00pm

James Belich (Oxford University): “Folk Globalization: ‘Crew Culture’ and the Mid-Nineteenth Century Gold Rushes”

Edyta Bojanowska (Rutgers University): “Circuits of Global Trade and Sociability in a mid-19th Century Russian Travelogue”

Gordon Chang (Stanford University): “The Global 1860s: Chinese Workers and the U.S. Transcontinental Railroad”

Arthur Downing (Oxford University): “The Friendly Planet: Friendly Societies and the Global Transfer of Community”

Chair: John Ikenberry (Princeton University)

Empires and Monarchies | Session Three, 2:00pm – 4:00pm

David Cannadine (Princeton University): “Monarchies and Empires in the 1860s”

Erika Pani (Colegio de México): “‘That Wonderful Institution’: Mexican Monarchism during the Revolutionary Sixties”

Ekaterina Pravilova (Princeton University): “Autocracy, Institutions, and the Problem of Trust: Russian Reforms of the 1860s”

Chair: Yaacob Dweck (Princeton University)

The Global 1860s: A Conference at Princeton University, October 15-17, 2015

Time and Money | Session Four, 4:30pm – 6:30pm

André Dombrowski (University of Pennsylvania): “Early Impressionism and Second Empire Financing”

Harold James (Princeton University): “The Making of Globalization’s Financial Infrastructure: Or, Monetary Debate in the Sixties, Nineteenth Century Style”

Vanessa Ogle (University of Pennsylvania): “Time and the Global Imagination after the Long 1860s”

Jay Sexton (Oxford University): “Steam Transport and the Global 1860s”

Chair: David Cannadine (Princeton University)

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 17

---

(All meetings in 219 Aaron Burr Hall, Princeton University)

New and Old Nationalisms | Session Five, 9:00am – 11:00am

Enrico Dal Lago (National University of Ireland, Galway): “Making and Unmaking Nations: The United States, Italy, and the Euro-American World in the 1860s”

Federico Marcon (Princeton University): “The Meiji Restoration: The Contradictory Nature of a Global Event”

Elecktra Kostopoulou (Rutgers University): “A Tale of More than Two Cities: Ottoman and Greek Constitutional Changes in the Long 1860s”

Chair: Jay Sexton (Oxford University)

Nodes: Sites of Overlap | Session Six, 11:30am – 1:30pm

John Darwin (Oxford University): “Port Cities as Agents of the New Global Order: An Ambiguous Role”

M’hamed Oualdi (Princeton University): “Are We Still Part of the Same World? North Africans between 1860s Empires”

Gyan Prakash (Princeton University): “The Emergence of Bombay as a Metropolis: Industry, Empire and the City in the 1860s”

Chair: Linda Colley (Princeton University)

The Global 1860s: A Conference at Princeton University, October 15-17, 2015

Global Minds, Global Orders | Session Seven, 2:30pm – 4:30pm

Jürgen Osterhammel (University of Konstanz): “Global Geographies and the Scope of “Civilization””

Jonathan Sperber (University of Missouri): “Silver, Opium, Slavery, and Race War: Karl Marx Thinks Globally during the Long 1860s”

Chair: David Bell (Princeton University)

Not Quite Final Thoughts | Session Eight, 5:00pm – 6.30pm

Roundtable Discussion

- Jeremy Adelman (Princeton University)
- Sven Beckert (Harvard University)
- Rana Mitter (Oxford University)